Course Objectives:

Internships provide an important opportunity for students to enhance their learning experience by participating in a professional planning environment. Most students fulfill the professional internship requirement with a summer position lasting about three months. However, the internship may be taken in other semesters with departmental approval. If the student has prior professional work experience the internship can be waived and another course substituted with departmental permission.

Students have the option of using their internship for credit (1 credit minimum to 3 credits maximum) and may do so by registering for URP 6941.

Typical places of employment include regional planning councils, city planning agencies, Florida's various water management districts, private planning consulting firms, community action agencies and state agencies such as the Department of Transportation.

The department assists students in finding an internship by contacting selected firms and agencies statewide. Students, however, are expected to play an active role in securing an internship.

The firms and agencies that employ interns are not affiliated with or supervised by the University of Florida. Students are responsible for securing suitable living arrangements and transportation during the internship, and are expected to conduct themselves in an appropriately professional manner. Students should promptly notify the internship coordinator if they encounter any circumstances that interfere with or impede their ability to complete the internship.

INTERNSHIPS

Internships provide an important opportunity for students to enhance their learning experience by participating in a professional planning environment. If the student has prior professional work experience the internship can be waived and another course substituted with departmental permission.

Students have the option of using their internship for credit (1 credit minimum to 3 credits maximum) and may do so by registering for URP 6941.

Typical places of employment include regional planning councils, city planning agencies, Florida's various water management districts, private architectural or planning consulting firms, community action agencies and state agencies such as the Department of Transportation.

Starting early in the spring semester, the department assists students in finding an internship by contacting selected firms and agencies statewide. Students, however, are expected to also play an active role. When an agency confirms that an internship is available, it is posted in the department's internship notebook located in the URP office. Students should have their resumes ready to send to potential employers by the end of February.

Plan for your internship well ahead of time. If possible, try to sign a nine-month rather than a year-long lease on your apartment so that you can leave town in the summer for an internship elsewhere: only a limited number of internships are available in Gainesville and Alachua County. It helps to be able to leave on short notice, as many agencies do not confirm funding sources until just before the summer.

The firms and agencies that employ interns are not affiliated with or supervised by the University of Florida. Students are responsible for securing suitable living arrangements and transportation during the internship, and are expected to conduct themselves in an appropriately professional manner. Students should promptly notify the internship coordinator if they encounter any circumstances that interfere with or impede their ability to complete the internship.

The intern is expected to be professional and should model him/herself after the planners of the host agency. The intern agrees to mail or email a written report (3-5 pages) to the department at the midpoint of the internship (approximately the 6th week), summarizing briefly his/her professional experience for that time period. At the end of the internship, the intern will prepare a written report (7-10 pages) describing and evaluating the professional experiences as an intern and furnish copies to the agency and the department. The host agency will identify a mentor on its staff who will take an interest in the richness of the intern's experience. The host agency will provide a professional work environment and space for the intern and will comply with all applicable laws and regulations governing the workplace. The host agency will complete an evaluation of the intern's performance and professional experiences at the conclusion of the internship (INTERN EVALUATION FORM).

A representative of the department may visit the student at the host agency during the internship. This visit, if conducted, would be to evaluate the intern's work environment and work products. Phone communication between the host agency and URP, and between the intern and URP is encouraged. Faculty representing URP are Associate Professor and Director, Dr. Kristin Larsen and Stanley Latimer, Internship Coordinator.
