Course Description:

This course provides Interior Design graduate students with an overview of proposal development required for their thesis, projects-in-lieu-of-thesis (PILOT), or dissertation. Students will develop and present their research topic, questions, and selected methods for feedback from the instructor, peers, and faculty. Students will be expected to collaborate with their committee chair/s in the proposal development process. The course will culminate with the submission of a thesis/project/proposal and related poster.

Course Objectives:

This course is intended to help students:

- Finalize specific research purpose or project focus and associated questions that will be addressed in the thesis/PILOT/dissertation;
- Document the proposed research methods or project approach;
- Verbally communicate the thesis/PILOT/dissertation proposal; and,
- Develop a thesis/PILOT/dissertation proposal including chapter materials.

Course Communications:

Class resources, announcements, updates, and assignments will be available on Canvas. The preferred method of communication for this course is email. If you have questions before the next class meeting, please send them to the instructor via Canvas messaging and be sure to copy the teaching assistant. To meet with the instructor outside of office hours, please schedule an appointment.

Student Engagement:

The seminar format requires active class involvement. Your engagement in class is critical to its effectiveness because the class is truly student driven. Be ready for in-class discussions and presentations will be necessary for the successful completion of this course, and you will be expected to stay for the entire class period.

Required Text & Readings: Creswell, J. (2022). Research Design: Qualitative, Quantitative, and Mixed Methods Approaches, 6th edition. Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage Publications. Other required readings will be assigned throughout the semester.

Materials and Supplies Fees:

There are no materials and supplies fees required for the course during this semester.

Prerequisite Knowledge and Skills:

Requires permission from the Department of Interior Design.

Instructional Methods:

Class format will combine presentations, discussions, peer critiques, web browsing/searching, reading, writing, and analysis. The goal of this class is to create an environment for students to be able to have informed discussions that inform their applied research and scholarship.

Course Assignments:

Written assignments are required throughout the semester to help build towards a final written proposal and poster due at the end of the semester. Students will receive feedback on their writing that they can use towards refining their final assignments.

- Poster
Students will prepare a professional conference quality poster describing their proposed thesis/PILOT/dissertation.
- Proposal
The primary goal of the course is to support proposal development for review by each students' graduate committee. Written assignments and in-class presentations all build towards this final deliverable.
- Presentation
To prepare to presentations, students will be given time and feedback for practicing their "pitch" and formally sharing their proposal to the course instructor, peers, and other departmental faculty.

Attendance expectations:

Students should be on time for class to lessen distractions for others as well as remain for the full session. Attendance in every class period is expected.

Understanding that sickness or other unfortunate circumstances outside of your control may occur, you will be allowed to miss no more than two classes. To be given full credit for any late assignments, the students must seek approval from the instructor to make-up work without incurring a grade penalty.

Absent students are responsible for obtaining any missed information and completing any assigned work. The following guidelines apply:

- Excused Absences: Documentation (e.g., a doctor's note for health emergencies, a field trip letter) must be provided to the instructor to consider for excused absences.
- Unexcused Absences: Up to two unexcused absences are allowed. Additional unexcused absence will result in a reduction of final course grade.
- Religious Holidays: No documentation is required, but please notify the instructor in advance of the holiday whenever possible.

If you anticipate missing a class, notify the instructor as early as possible to discuss how to best stay on track.

Assignment Submission:

Assignments must be submitted through Canvas via the assignment page, following any instructions provided therein. Due dates are specified in Canvas. All assignments, whether complete or incomplete, must be submitted by the due date and will be graded as submitted. Late submissions will incur a 20% penalty for each day (or partial day) past the deadline.

Make-up Policy:

Students who can demonstrate that they were unable to submit an assignment by the deadline due to an excused absence, and who provide appropriate documentation, will be granted a reasonable extension to complete the work.

Course Technology:

All students have access to UF computer labs and the lab in Antevy Hall (rooms 116 and 118).

Required and recommended hardware and software for IND students are listed here:
